If a majority of these boys want this bill the Senator need not disturb himself about their not getting all that is coming to them. They will be back in two, three or five years for just about this amount once more, and they will be back in five years

"They were years glorified, and more than that, they were years sanctified. There is no compensation except that which God himself can give in eternity that measures up to the sanctification of that peculiar calling.

"Mr. President, men generally are braver than peculiar calling.

"Mr. President, men generally are braver than other men think they are, and that is not all. A man himself, is, as a rule, braver than he thinks. It takes the test to satisfy even himself and goes out to fight for civilization against military autocracy. I scorn the suggestion that he has sacrificed the number of days, months or years that he has devoted to that purpose.

"I wish that to weigh in, that the heart and the mind may catch it. That it has placed him at are economic disadvantage with his follow citizens all history proves it is not true.

"Mr. President, I did not rise to argue is question: I rose in order to present or the man who had become diseased in consequence of service or the widow or the dependent of the dead man dependent upon public charity because he made himself by his love of country economically disqualified, would not be fit for a seat in this body or in the other body or even for American citizenship; so far as I know there is nobedy, however, mean and selfish and con-

BONUS FOR SANCTIFIED DUTY

NE of the finest impromptu speeches made in the Senate in recent years was contributed by John Sharp Williams (Dem., Miss.) to-day in opposing the bonus bill. Notably impressive periods in his denunciation of the scheme were as follows:

glorified them; they sanctified them in the eyes of God, men sion law for Mexican veterans, but I know that the Mexican war took place in 1846 and that the first service pension act for Mexican veterans was passed after I became a member of Congress, which was a considerable length of time afterward, a generation or perhaps more.

"I know that the first pension act for Revolutionary soldiers was after pretty nearly a generation had peased and the members of the men who were entitled to it had become old and those of them who were entitled to the december of the pension and become almost helpless. I know that even following the civil war—and pensions were asked sooner after that war than any other—that some nine or ten years elapsed after the war before the general pension bill was passed, as My recollection is that the first general service pension bill applicable to the civil, war veterans was passed in the nineties."

Mr. Stelling—Mr. President the first general service pension bill applying to the civil war was passed, as my recollection is, in May, 1911.

Received One Benus Already.

Mr. Williams: "Then it was still later than I thought. The pending measure is not only a general service pension bill but it is a general service pension bill but the pending measure is not only a general service pension bill but the sale general service pension bill was pension to only a general service pension bill was passed, as my recollection is that the first general service to be decembered to the veterans was passed in the nineties."

Mr. Williams: "Then it was still later than I thought. Mr. Williams: "Then it was still later than I thought. The pending measure is not only a general service pension bill but it is a general bonus till. We have already given the soldiers of the late war one bonus. I voted for it because I thought it was necessary to enable them to take care of themselves until they could get home. We gave them $60, or two months extra pay, because we realized that the service men needed more than merely rations and uniforms with which to get home and to live until they could get something to do, until they could get something to do, until they could find occupations.

"It is not true that those of my blood who passed through the fights connected with it, those long eight days of constant marching and constant fighting and constant danger, sacrificed that time-sacrificed it, lost it, a thing gone out of their lives without any compensation to the mor their fathers or their mothers or their sisters. What an absurdity.

"I thank God that they did not die while they were doing it; but if they had died I would not have worn mourning, and when they do die some time, if I sm died I would not have worn mourning, and when they do die some time, if I sm died I would not have worn mourning, and when they do die some time, if I sm died I would not have worn mourning, and when they do die some time, if I sm died I would not have worn mourning.
